W. B. COOPER

HAS PURCHASED THE RIGHT FOR THIS County [illegible] above Patent and will hereafter use it in the construction of all the Vehicles manufactured at his extensive

Carriage Factory,

He respectfully refers to the following
CARD.

Having examined the New Patent Shaft Coupling invented by H. B. Hoagland, we feel pleasure in informing the public that in our opinion it is the safest and most durable connecting shafts or tongue with vehicles that has ever been used

It fastens without bolt or screw and is therefore, easily and speedily separated. It rests on Gutta Percha so as to be entirely free from the rattling and which so often disturbs restless horses. It is easily changed so that the shafts or tongue may be detached in an instant and is convenient safe and secure

It is easy to change to this style of coupling any buggy or other vehicle now in use and with small expense. We have come to the conclusion to use this [illegible] ourselves and recommend its use in all cases. We consider it far superior to the Brewster Patent heretofore [illegible]

[illegible] Catlin Assignee of John A. Daly a bankrupt vs William Currier. Action for damages for conversion of personal property

CONCLUSIONS OF FACT

This cause being tried without the intervention of a jury in pursuance of the stipulation of the parties heretofore filed the Court now finds the following conclusions of fact

1 That about the month of November 1867 the defendant being then and ever since engaged in the business of a merchant tailor and clothier at number 103 Front street Portland formed a partnership with John A Daly a hatter [illegible] in the hat business under the firm name of John A Daly & Co at the defendant's place of business aforesaid and that the defendant at the commencement of said partnership advanced [illegible] from the sum of $1,600 in gold coin [illegible] March 1, 1867 [illegible] of the firm for the sum of $1,600 in gold coin which he afterwards paid with interest to Ladd & Tilton bankers at Portland

2 That Daly expended the $1,600 aforesaid in the purchase of stock for the firm and at the same time obtained about $2,000 worth of stock on credit: and that on December 24 18[illegible] said firm by agreement of the partners thereto was dissolved and the stock of goods and fixtures on hand were turned over to Daly who was to continue the business on his own account at the same place

3 That the business of Daly & Co yielded no profits nor did the defendant receive any money from it as profits or otherwise but that Daly during the existence of the firm drew out of the business from $[illegible] to $75 per month for his support. That at the date of the dissolution aforesaid Daly & Co were owing the defendant the sum of $2,546 in gold coin for money advanced and paid by the defendant as aforesaid for which sum Daly then gave his promissory note payable on demand to the defendant or order, with interest at one per cent per month to secure the payment of which note Daly at the same time executed a mortgage to the defendant upon the stock and fixtures of the hat business aforesaid then being and to remain at 103 Front street aforesaid with condition that the same should be void upon the payment of $2,546 in gold coin on or before December 24 1868 with interest at the rate of one per cent per month that the mortgage further provided that if default should be made in the payment of the principal sum, or any installment of the interest thereon then the mortgagee was empowered to take the goods into his possession and sell the same by due process of law or by agreement of the parties, and out of the money arising therefrom, to pay the debt interest charges, etc, and until default be made as aforesaid, the mortgagor or his assignees were to remain in the possession of the goods and in the full and free use and enjoyment of the same

4 That the mortgage aforesaid was duly filed in the County Clerk's office of the proper county on December 27 1867, but no affidavit was ever made or filed by the mortgagee thereon setting forth his interest in the mortgaged property. That Daly made default and failed to pay the principal sum mentioned in such mortgage and the instalments of interest thereon or any part thereof, although requested so to do, whereupon the defendant on or about November 25 1868, took possession of all the stock and fixtures then in the possession of Daly at number 103 Front street aforesaid

5 That at the execution of the mortgage aforesaid it was orally agreed and understood between the parties thereto, that notwithstanding said mortgage, Daly might dispose of the stock of goods in the course of his business and that any new or additional stock which Daly might purchase to supply the place of that so sold should be bound by and included within the terms and operations of said mortgage, and that in pursuance of such oral agreement, Daly sold from the original stock and added thereto by purchase that when the stock was turned over to Currier as aforesaid, there was remaining on hand of the goods mentioned in the mortgage what was equal in value to $700 in gold coin and of the fixtures so mentioned, what was equal in value to $100 in gold coin, and of goods that had been added to the original mortgaged stock by Daly what was equal in value to $975 in gold coin

6 That on December 19, 1868, Daly was by the District Court for the District aforesaid duly adjudged a bankrupt upon the petition of his creditors and that on January 13 1869 the plaintiff being then duly qualified as assignee of the estate of the said Daly duly demanded of the defendant the property above mentioned whereupon the defendant delivered to the plaintiff all that part of the goods in his possession which had been purchased by Daly since the execution of the mortgage but as to the goods and fixtures then in his possession and included and mentioned in said mortgage the same being of the value of $800 in gold coin, the defendant refused to deliver the same to the plaintiff but retained the same as his own property under and by virtue of the mortgage, and the default of Daly in not performing the conditions thereon

7 That the defendant withdrew from the firm of Daly & Co, and transferred his interest in the stock and fixtures thereof and received the [illegible] gage as aforesaid, without any fraudulent intent and without any intent to hinder delay or defraud the creditors of him the said Daly but for the purpose of protecting his own interest and securing his debt

8 That on December [illegible] 1868 defendant commenced a suit in the Circuit Court for the county of Multnomah, to foreclose the mortgage aforesaid and that on January 2 1869 for want of an answer by the only defendant in said suit [illegible] said Daly said Circuit Court adjudged and decreed among other things that the lien of said mortgage be foreclosed and that the [illegible] mentioned therein be sold as by law provided to satisfy the debt of [illegible] due from said Daly to said Currier but that no sale appears to have been made of such property or any part thereof by virtue of or in pursuance of such decree or otherwise

9 That the decree aforesaid [illegible] that the summons [illegible] had been duly served upon the defendant therein and that the time for answering such [illegible] had expired whereas it appears from the original summons in such suit that the same was served by a person specially appointed by the proper Sheriff to serve the same but that the return of such person as to making such service is not proven by his affidavit or otherwise than by his mere certificate

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

And it was this day the Court having heard the argument of counsel in the matter of the proper conclusions of law to be drawn from the facts hereinbefore found [illegible] the above entitled cause does find and state the following conclusions of law therein—

I That the writing executed by Daly on [illegible] 1867 purporting to be a mortgage of a certain stock of goods and fixtures to the defendant [illegible] taken in connection with the contemporaneous oral agreement of said Daly and defendant as set forth in the findings of fact aforesaid was not a valid mortgage of said fixtures but was and is not a mortgage of said stock of goods but [illegible] transfer or assignment [illegible] the same to said defendant in trust for the use and benefit of said Daly and therefore was and is void [illegible] as against the plaintiff herein

II That the goods and fixtures aforesaid [illegible] or have been seized or sold under the decree purporting to foreclose the mortgage thereof [illegible]

[illegible] the return [illegible] said decree was given before [illegible] the commencement of the [illegible] against Daly [illegible] for want of a sufficient proof of the service of the summons [illegible] the same was obtained after the filing of the [illegible] of the plaintiff herein [illegible]

III That the defendant [illegible] converted to his own use the goods aforesaid of the value of $790 aforesaid, by refusing to deliver the same to the plaintiff herein when duly demanded thereof whereof the plaintiff is entitled to recover of and from said defendant the value of said goods so converted to his own use aforesaid

OPINION

The only material question in this case is [illegible] [illegible] satisfied [illegible] [illegible] to [illegible] gage [illegible] when taken [illegible] more [illegible] corporate or real agreement a [illegible] the parties a simple mortgage [illegible] transfer of the property in [illegible] in trust for the use and benefit of Daly and therefore void as against creditors. [illegible] any proof [illegible] of the Bankrupt Act. While there is some reason for supposing that Daly was insolvent when he executed the so called mortgage to the defendant yet there is nothing in the case to show that there were any other debts than the one of the defendant. Under those circumstances even if Daly was insolvent it could not be said that the mortgage was either executed or received with an intent to give or receive a preference or to hinder or delay existing creditors or to defeat the provisions of the Bankrupt Act

The question then turns upon the statute of the State and the general principles of law applicable to such a transaction. By the former it is declared that a mortgage of personal property [illegible] creates a disputable presumption of fraud as against the creditors of the mortgagor unless the same is duly filed or recorded as provided by law (Or Code 639) and also that all conveyances and transfers of goods and chattels in trust for the person making the same shall be void as against the creditors existing or subsequent of such person. (Code 6[illegible])

A chattel mortgage is a pledge of personal property as a security for the performance of some act such as the payment of an existing debt. The law allows the property pledged to remain in the possession of the mortgagor if the mortgage is put on record as notice to the world. But if the mortgage be also coupled with a condition or agreement that the mortgagor may treat the goods as if he were the owner of them may sell them at his option and receive the proceeds to his own use such condition or agreement avoids the mortgage. The two cannot stand together. Such use of the mortgaged property by the mortgagor is utterly inconsistent with the idea of giving a pledge or security to the mortgagee, in legal effect it is a sham, a nullity—a mere shadow of a mortgage only calculated to ward off other creditors—a conveyance in trust for the benefit of the person making it, and therefore void as against creditors

In this case it is shown by the findings of the court (and the testimony of the defendant was clear and unequivocal upon that point) that by the understanding between the defendant and Daly the latter was to continue, not only in the possession of the goods but to sell and dispose of them in the course of his business at his option and take the proceeds to his own use and so he did with the knowledge and consent of the defendant until the defendant took possession near the close of the year 1868. As against the other creditors of the bankrupt the defendant cannot claim anything in this property by such a transaction. In re Manly (1 B R 289) decided by Mr Justice [illegible] of the Southern District of Ohio is a case on all fours with the one under consideration and there the mortgage was held void as to creditors

The case of [illegible] vs Mulford et al 2[illegible] Cal 4[illegible] cited by counsel for defendant is not in point. In that case it was held that in all mortgages of goods and chattels whether accompanied by possession or not there is a trust created in favor of the mortgagor as to the surplus, if any, and that the statute of frauds which declares all transfers of goods made in trust for the party making the same, to be void as to creditors, does not apply to such a trust. That the trust as to the surplus is not the object of the transfer but a mere incident and does not bring the transaction within the purview of the statute. But in the case at bar, the trust created was something more than a mere legal implication that the surplus if any after paying the debt of the defendant should be held by him for the benefit of Daly. As has been shown there was an express agreement that notwithstanding the mortgage to the defendant Daly might proceed to dispose of the goods as his own and receive the proceeds to his own use. This was an express trust in favor of Daly as to all the mortgaged goods, which rendered the mortgage itself [illegible] inoperative so long as the goods were allowed to remain in Daly's possession. As the mortgage became forfeited within a month from its execution for the want of payment of the first installment of interest on the debt, it was in the power of the defendant to have terminated the trust at any time thereafter by taking the goods into his own possession. But he saw proper to leave them with Daly, with the power to use and dispose of them as his own, and now the law [illegible] other creditors who it may be [illegible] in the faith of this unequal [illegible] and apparent absolute ownership

But it is said by the counsel for defendant that the question of fraudulent intent under the statute is a question of fact (Or Code 657) and that as the court has not found as matter of fact that the [illegible] intent to defraud any one the only conclusion of law proper to be drawn from the facts is in favor of the validity of the mortgage

This argument it seems to me is based upon two erroneous assumptions [illegible] That the [illegible] of the statute [illegible] in any case [illegible] and That the [illegible] fraudulent intent is involved in this case at all [illegible] which by Sec 12 of the [illegible] Code is made [illegible] in all cases arising under Titles III and IV of that Chap is the intent of the grantor [illegible] not that of the grantee. It is not found in this case whether Daly the alleged mortgagor acted in good faith or not. As to the [illegible] the argument under [illegible] it is sufficient to say that such a mortgage or conveyance as this—a conveyance in trust for the party making it is declared void as to creditors as a matter of public policy without reference to the intent of the parties thereto. The law assumes absolutely and beyond doubt [illegible] that under no circumstances can such a transaction be upheld in justice to creditors. This is the case and whatever may have been the intention of the parties the law for the protection of the general creditors of the debtor declares the so called mortgage void because made in trust for him.

As to the second conclusion of law the matter [illegible] for argument. The decree for [illegible] the mortgage at most only extinguished the right of redemption as between Daly and the defendant. There was no sale or settle of the goods under the decree and beyond extinguishing the right of redemption as stated it had no effect upon the property in the goods ever between the [illegible] and the mortgagee. But more than this the plaintiff was not a party to this decree and the [illegible] upon which it is based however [illegible] between the parties to it is void as to the general creditors whom he represents.

Fresh Rumors from the Ecumenical Council Concerning the Question of Papal Infallibility

[Rome (Dec. 12) Correspondence New York Herald.]

I can commence this letter with a budget of information of the very highest importance, information which I should telegraph to you if the authorities here would permit my doing anything of the kind, which they certainly would not. I may premise that my authority is of the highest possible nature and were I to name him universal credence would be obtained for what I am about to state. To begin with, then, the Pope, in an interview which he granted to the Bishops of Italy in a body spoke out very plainly on the question of Papal Infallibility. He had not, he said, been the one to bring the point into notice and discussion and as far as he was concerned, the question might well have been allowed to sleep as it had slept for many hundreds of years. Even as it was he should be sorry that it raised if it excited bitter discussion, or if there were the slightest chance of their being a cause of disunion. But upon one point, he told the Italian Bishops he did feel most strongly, and he had a right to expect, and did expect, that the Council would go with him. The matter he referred to was the Syllabus of 1864 and he confidently trusted that it would be accepted by them, in all ethical and social questions as the general basis of their decisions, seeing that it embodied the fundamental maxim of the Catholic Church. So much for the spirit, if not letter, of the remarks addressed by his Holiness to the Bishops [illegible] home. To the Bishops of Ireland, who have likewise had an interview with him, he expressed himself with equal clearness; but his observations were addressed in particular to one of the modern errors condemned by the Syllabus. He told these subjects of the British Crown that the chief point to be kept steadily in view by them was that cardinal principle of the Church, by virtue of which liberty of conscience, so much belauded nowadays is utterly disapproved of. All their powers religious and political must be addressed to opposing such a dangerous and abominable theme. So far the information I have given you may be relied upon with the utmost confidence, but what I am now going to state though proceeding from the same high authority to which I am indebted for the preceding intelligence, must be regarded as only a sincere and very decided opinion arrived at under circumstances which afford special opportunities for forming an opinion. What I am told is that at the present moment the Ultramontanes are directing their energies exclusively to the carrying of the infallibility question. They are making the most strenuous efforts to get it passed by decree before the Epiphany—the day on which as I informed you in a previous letter the next solemn meeting of the Council in St. Peter's is to take place—in order that on that Feast the 6th of January the infallibility of the Pope may be proclaimed to the whole Catholic world to be accepted as an article of faith under pain of eternal damnation henceforth and forever. I am happy to be able to add that the same authority—as likely to be accurately informed on this point as any person in Europe—feels pretty confident that in this ambitious design they will be disappointed. You will remember that I have all along professed myself incredulous as to the dogma of Papal infallibility ever being established but you must understand the above opinion as referring only to what will happen by the 6th of January. Never believe, if it be true—of which I myself entertain no doubt—that the whole strength and influence of the Sacred College backed by the intrigues of the Jesuits and assisted by the burning zeal of such prelates as the Archbishop of Westminster and the Archbishop of Malines are being concentrated on the conversion of the bulk of the Fathers of the Council to the doctrine of Papal Infallibility before three weeks have elapsed, and if it should turn out that those three weeks have passed away without the object aimed at having been accomplished then I think we shall not be presumptuous in entertaining the hope that the Church has escaped the danger of [illegible] herself and the consciences of her children with the burden of an the dogma more arrogant and preposterous than any she has yet chosen to enforce

Railroads for the Pacific

If all the projected railroad lines wholly or in part for the Pacific coast shall be completed within the time now contemplated the period is not far in the future when we shall have a network of roads surpassing, if not in the number yet in the length of lines and the magnificent extent of country served, that of any of those which traverse the equal number of States of the Atlantic slope First, of course, as the Central and Union Pacific now the only line connecting us with the great eastern world but only the forerunner of at least two great transcontinental trunks, each the centre of a system of its own—the Northern Pacific from Lake Superior to Puget Sound, and the Southern Pacific connecting the lower Mississippi valley and eventually the Atlantic seaboard of the Southern States, with Arizona and Southern California. Two thousand miles of Pacific railway are already built the western end connecting with a half dozen feeding branches or side lines in California, and with a half dozen or more under contemplation

The outlook, as regards Oregon and the northern Pacific coast may be stated about as follows The Columbia branch of the Union Pacific contemplates the construction of near a thousand miles of road, including a project already mooted in Oregon to meet it with a line from Portland making a trunk of such length and importance as to be in itself the center of a system Its completion will not precede by five years the building of a half dozen branches—offshoots into the rich agricultural, grazing or mining districts which lie on either side. By the terms of the bill now pending before Congress granting a land subsidy to the Columbia Branch road its completion is fixed at some time prior to July 4, 1876 Considering the wonderful energy that seems now to be a fixed component of the railroad spirit, its construction may be confidently anticipated, within the next five, instead of eight years. A powerful stimulus to the early completion will be found in the work going on to the North—the construction of the Northern Pacific trunk which in some sense will be the rival of not only the Columbia branch but of the Central and Union Pacific trunk Besides this, it is not at all improbable that a branch road to connect the Central Pacific with either Southern Oregon or the upper end of the Wallamet valley via one of the Wallamet passes of the Cascades, will be undertaken at no distant day.

One of the most momentous enterprises now on foot is that of the Northern Pacific Railroad from Lake Superior to Puget Sound, with its branch to Portland, Oregon. By the terms of the act granting the national subsidy, as amended by the act of July, 1868, work is to be commenced by the 2d day of July of 1870 and the entire road is to be constructed and equipped by the 4th day of July 1877. The branch to Portland is provided for in the original act and is an integral part of the system. It is to leave the main trunk line at some suitable point not more than three hundred miles from the Puget Sound terminus Its construction is subject to the same conditions in every respect as is that of the main trunk line. The length of this road and branch in round numbers, may be stated at 2,300 miles, with termini upon waters bearing steamers or sailing craft of the first-class in regard to construction and tonnage. Unlike the Central and Southern trans-continental trunks, it will pass continuously through a country rich in agricultural pastoral or mineral wealth of such possibilities of development as will yet be the wonder of half a world. It is not our purpose to speak here of the commercial connection which this trunk will have between the old world and the new, further than to say that the western terminus will be upon the best harbor of the Pacific coast, in a direct line between the great centers of trade at the East and the shortest and most frequently traveled routes to China and Japan, and that the route of the trunk line is through a region less frequently obstructed by snows than that of the Central route, and less liable to interruptions of other natures in summer than either of the other routes.

Then we have in prospect a grand coast-wise trunk line from Puget Sound to San Francisco, a part of which is already built We have information that it is in contemplation by railroad men of California to unite with the California and Oregon companies in the extension of this trunk from San Francisco to San Diego, the terminus of the Southern Pacific railroad. A part of this system is already built or under way from San Francisco southward. The same influences of a commercial nature which impelled the building of the Central trunk, so much quicker than had ever been anticipated by even the most hopeful, are at work in all these enterprises to hasten their beginning, hasten their progress and hasten their completion We now firmly believe that of the nearly 8 000 miles of road embraced in the enterprises we have mentioned above, not 500 miles will remain to be completed on the 4th of July, 1876 and that, including the Central and Union Pacific, now finished, not less than 7,000 miles will be built within five years from the 4th of July 1870 Of these roads lines aggregating over 5,000 miles will be connected either directly or by branch connection with Oregon and with the city of Portland

In these estimates—they are now something better than mere speculations—we have not included any of the schemes for local roads many of which will doubtless be built sooner than most persons imagine. We do not doubt but our valley will within the next decade be connected by rail with one or two points on the sea coast The new facilities for travel and transportation which the railroads will give, will constantly create and multiply new demands for other local roads—feeders of the main trunks and thus as has been the case in all the Atlantic States the railways and the new districts developed by them will mutually act and react upon and create each other with surprising rapidity Our country favored with manifold advantages of soil, climate, mineral deposits, exchangeable products, and geographical location will present a spectacle of progress rarely or never seen even in this the great railroad era The men who live to see the centennial anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, will be able to start by rail from Portland Oregon and make the 'grand round' of the United States via Puget Sound St Paul Chicago Buffalo and the Niagara Falls to Portland Maine thence via Boston, New York Philadelphia Charleston and Pensacola to New Orleans thence through the great prairies of Texas and New Mexico and the mines of Arizona to San Diego on the Pacific seaboard and thence in a course parallel with the Pacific sea coast via San Francisco Sacramento the valleys of Rogue river Umpqua and Wallamet to Portland where he had started but little more than a month before, having traveled all the time nearly the borders of the greatest territory in the world under one government.

A Few Queries To Whom it May Concern

Do the Democratic politicians own the Workingmen's Associations? If they do why do the calls for meetings appeal to everybody without distinction of party to fall into line with the laboring classes to organize to protect their interests against the encroachments of capital? If they do not why do the Democratic newspapers which run mad in [illegible] the doings of the associations always couple them with the proposed slaughter and roasting and eating of the wicked Radicals by the Democracy? We ask these questions because the inmates of wealth and the impositions of labor seem to be pretty nearly equally divided among the adherents of both political parties If the associations of this city are Democratic clubs in disguise and operating under false pretenses do they propose to go up in a raid under the Democratic banner against the capital in their own party? Does the capital belonging to the members of their own party treat the laboring man any better than capital belonging to anybody else Is the protection sought for protection against only the capital in the hands of Republicans? If their struggle is simply against the encroachments of capital in general how do they propose to reach the remedy through political manipulation seeing that the evil is as much in one party as in the other and the remedy must go against one party as much as against the other? If the contest to be made involve only the ethics of labor vs capital, how can the ethics of politics or theology be invoked to settle it? Or why one and not the other If after all the associations of workingmen are no more nor less than Democratic electioneering engines as they seem to be in this city manipulated by professional politicians and broken down hacks, why not pull off disguises and make an open fight? If Democracy is so bold and outspoken as its champions vaunt it why skulk behind such subterfuges? In submitting these queries, we wish it distinctly understood that we make no point against the workingmen's associations as such having co operative designs to better the relative positions in the scale of social economy of their members What we desire to show is the fallacy of the idea that politicians have any interest whatever in the condition of laborers further than to catch their votes with any sort of available net or that the politicians will ever make labor nobler than it already is or that they will ever ameliorate the disadvantages under which labor suffers, or that having caught the votes of laborers by a trick they will ever remember having made them promises

Editorial Notes

The Pacific Coast Almanac and Year Book of Facts for 1870 published by Henry G Langley San Francisco, has been received We find it a pamphlet of 103 pages filled in small type, with matters of general as well as of particular and local interest—laws national and State, organizations of the General and Pacific States and Territorial governments; tables, and statistical information on a great variety of subjects It is a valuable work for every business man of the Pacific Coast

The telegraph reports a tragedy at Lewiston James Wood sentenced to be hung for the murder of Duffey, was hung in the jail, in consequence of a commutation of his sentence by the Governor of Idaho Territory There are no particulars, but it is well known there was a very strong feeling against the prisoner, among the citizens of Lewiston and it is probable that the hanging was done somewhat after the style of a vigilance committee The brother of the ill fated young man, who is a resident of Oregon and a most estimable citizen, went up to Idaho not long since to procure the commutation of the sentence expressing however, at the time he started, a fear that it might result in just such as we now hear of

The Philadelphia Press expresses the opinion that Hon Wm. Stong, of Pennsylvania, will be appointed to the vacant place on the Supreme bench It believes he would have been selected for the vacancy on the resignation of Justice Grier if the President had not believed it due to Mr Stanton's eminent deserts to proffer it to him Judge Strong indeed, only agreed to take the place of Attorney General in the event of Mr Hoar's confirmation for the Southern vacancy as a special favor to the President and now that Hoar does not fill that vacancy and that Stanton is called away from his new honors there would seem to be nothing in the way of Judge Strong's selection to the circuit composed of Pennsylvania and New Jersey

It is a burning disgrace to the American press that among its numbers are to be found those who manifest such hyena like instincts as have been exhibited in numerous quarters since the death of Edwin M Stanton How ineffably disgusting, how demoniacally inhuman must such language appear to every noble mind as this from the Memphis Avalanche A bad man has gone to his long account A villain has shuffled off this mortal coil A despot has kicked the bucket There was great rejoicing in Pandemonium yesterday Since that eventful day when Adam and Eve manufactured clothes out of fig leaves there have been many large gatherings in hell and on earth But the cavalcade that turned out in the infernal regions to greet E M Stanton who died yesterday was in all probability the largest that ever paid tribute to a congenial spirit And so on through more than a quarter of a column concluding thus Stanton the infamous is drinking molten iron trading in pyrotechnics and broiling in a heated furnace and the people rejoice We do not believe that outside the chivalrous (God save the mark) Democracy any such specimens of foul billingsgate profanity and utterly revolting sentiment can be found proceeding from the mouths of civilized men

THE [illegible] RIVER DITCH THE WORK COMPLETED—DIMENSIONS OF THE CANAL

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT OF THE OREGONIAN]

EDITOR OREGONIAN

The Legislature at the session before the last passed an act to improve the State lands in Union county Oregon' and commissioners were appointed to superintend said work Two separate contracts were let one for a ditch to drain Catherine Creek and the other for a canal to turn the channel of Grande Ronde river Messrs Nodine Perley Clark and Welch being the contractors under said commissioners The work is completed and the civil engineer Mr C M Foster has made a full examination of the work and certifies to the commission that the work is all done in accordance with the agreement and that the ditch and canal are in good condition to receive and convey water His report specifies as follows Length of ditch and canal 5½ miles average depth of canal ¾ feet width of bottom of canal 10 feet average width [illegible] average depth of Catherine creek ditch [illegible] average width 6 feet [illegible] yards of dirt excavated 312 [illegible] and such other bridges two dams two flumes and two waste gates

The canal takes water of the Grand Ronde river at a distance of [illegible] miles with a fall of 21 feet in a distance of [illegible] letting it flow the old channel through its various meanderings as is estimated 50 miles You will see that the course of the river must have been very sluggish as it had only 20 feet fall in 40 or 50 miles The fall now is 12 times greater than before as the canal is to the river before but twelve

I am acquainted with the lay of the country and am convinced from personal observation that the work is not only well done but wisely projected and will in future fully do all for this valley that the most sanguine hoped for Yours

Dr J J McBride—[illegible] with neuralgia [illegible] King of Pain I take pleasure in recommending it to those afflicted with rheumatism I know of several cases of neuralgia that have been cured by using it

W T BALLOU of Elko, Nevada

Card from Harbor Master

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec 2, 1869

To Dr McBride—This is to certify that I have been troubled with neuralgia in my right arm and hand for the past three months and although I have had medical advice and tried a number of remedies nothing relieved me until I tried Dr McBride's King of Pain which has done me more good than all the other remedies I have tried

JAMES S HOUSEMAN

THE GREAT KING OF PAIN.

DR. J. J. M'BRIDE,

TELLS YOUR DISEASE WITHOUT ASKING ANY QUESTIONS!

A CARD.

SAN FRANCISCO Oct 16 1869

DR McBRIDE—My Dear Sir For the last six or seven years I have been afflicted with rheumatic pains from my knees down embracing all the joints of my ankle and toes These pains have come upon me yearly [illegible] every year about this season of the year My knees and ankles, and the joints and my wrists and finger joints would swell and leave me in the most agonizing pain known only to those who have suffered from this dread malady These pains would continue for a period of from three to four months every year and they have been regular, unfailing annual visitors I have been accustomed to apply for relief to the best citizens of San Francisco and have not failed to use all the popular remedies known to the public I would sometimes receive temporary relief after long continued application [illegible] would never fail to return in a few days with increased severity

About two weeks ago, while my pains were [illegible] I saw you at the corner of one of our streets and heard what you said about your "King of Pain I confess that I listened to you with deep distrust indeed I may say that I did not believe your statements still I thought I "It's only a dollar and I'll patronize the humbug" [illegible] I bought a bottle and tried it first [illegible] my knee, which was fearfully swollen and from which I suffered very severely The second night I tried it again and my dear Doctor, you can judge of my surprise ecstacy and delight altogether when I found on rising the second morning that my pains were entirely gone and the swelling entirely disappeared My knee joints were as supple as when I was young I actually danced with delight, much to the amusement of my friends, who had been in the habit of regarding me as a decrepid old rheumatic It has now been two weeks, and I have not felt the least symptom of return I believe I am cured, and I feel so grateful to you that I offer you this statement [illegible]

Yours very truly RAPHAEL JOHANEE

State of California city and county of San Francisco

On this 16th day of October 1869 personally appeared before me a Justice of the Peace in and for the city and county of San Francisco aforesaid Raphael Johanee known to me to be the person who signed the foregoing letter and who being by me duly sworn deposes and says the contents thereof are true

T W TALIAFERRO Justice of the Peace

TO THE PUBLIC

[illegible] I cheerfully make a statement of the following facts For twelve months I had suffered from prostration [illegible] nervous system resulting in partial paralysis and almost total loss of sight A score of physicians had abandoned my case as hopelessly incurable [illegible] I was given up by doctors and friends [illegible] the agony of [illegible] King of Pain Under that benign influence [illegible] and I obtained [illegible] weary months. My sight was so much restored that [illegible] Dr McBride's [illegible] Before I saw him [illegible] I had regarded the use of [illegible] as pointless [illegible] arrived [illegible] I can say to those in [illegible] restored as I could not have expected to have been in so little time My eyesight is most perfectly [illegible] restored health

The Davenport Gazette says the whole State is a candidate for the Senatorial place Iowa would make a good Senator

The Sacramento Bee says that the third House at Sacramento is unprecedentedly large in point of numbers and the members are hinting of extraordinary important measures

The St Paul Pioneer has information stating that the settlers of Todd Morrison, and other frontier counties are greatly annoyed by the depredations of the Chippewa Indians

The centenary meeting of the Universalist churches of Western Michigan which closed on the 19th ult, voted to raise during the ensuing year, over and above the usual church expenses $75,000 as a centenary offering

The Lower Lake (Cal) Bulletin says "Although dairying is the best business in the country the farmers generally eschew it, and prefer to raise their fifteen or twenty bushels of grain to the acre, and pay out two-thirds of it to get the other third in market."

The last Oshkosh Weekly Times has a good looking portrait of old Oshkosh chief of the Menomonees, who died eleven years ago and for whom that prosperous city was named with the erroneous interpolation of the extra h Also an interesting account of his life,

The Stockbridge Indians in Wisconsin are gradually disappearing This tribe once numbered 1,000 warriors, they emigrated from Massachusetts to New York in 1789, to Ohio in 1809, and to Wisconsin in 1821 They are now suffering for food, and number about 300 men, women and children

A well dressed female walked into a Saginaw saloon the other day with all the dignity of a Miss Anthony or Mrs Stanton laid a fractional currency on the counter, and called for a drink with the nonchalance of a toper of long experience The Enterprise thinks the women's cause is progressing

Some of the silky fibers from the pods of the wild California milk weed sent by Mr Gillett of Nevada, to Lyons, has been tried there and found to be too short to be of any value. He is cultivating the plant in the hope of obtaining a longer fiber He says the fibrous covering of the stem is stronger than hemp

The Island Empire is informed that all the Chinamen employed at Silver Peak have been discharged. Seventy or eighty of them formerly employed on the railroad, were detailed for the service in order to test the value of their work in the mines After a fair trial, all have been discharged as they cannot be profitably worked at mining

Brannan's distillery at Calistoga shipped to New York last year 580 barrels of brandy, this year it will ship 800 The Napa Register says A heavier grape crop is anticipated for next season than has ever before been known owing to the remarkably open and mild winter More new vines will be planted out this season than in any three years combined Vineyards pay $100 to $150 per acre, while grain pays from $20 to $30 Rooted vines bear in the second and third year

Mark Twain on the Cubans

Mark Twain has not the most exalted opinion of the Cuban patriots. He says in the Buffalo Express

We are bound up, heart and soul in our Cuban "patriot." We live but for him we should die if he were taken from us And how grand a character he is! How gallant, how lofty, how magnanimous! His career, from the moment his heart is first stirred with patriotic emotions, till that heart ceases to beat is a chivalrous romance He begins by shouting 'Down with the Spaniard!' in the streets of Havana. Then he and a hundred of his fellows are captured by a handful of soldiers and thrown into prison Here they take the oath to the Government, hire out to it as spies upon other patriots and finish by denouncing a hundred of their personal friends to the Government at so much a head Those parties are duly shot, garroted or hanged in the public plaza, or otherwise made way with according to the peculiar taste of the commandant in the matter of executions Next, the patriot escapes to the country and resumes patriotism once more A few hundreds of men band together, and then we hear of gallant deeds! They pounce upon deserted plantations and burn up the sugar crop and the negro quarters and forthwith our great journals shriek the tidings of 'Another Grand Patriot Victory!' Then the Government troops capture half the knightly gang and shut them up in a barn and burn them alive And instantly our great journals and our Congressmen and our selves, rage about the brutal inhumanity of Spain and with all our hearts we hate those Spaniards for burning up those pure patriots, and we know we are sincere, too, notwithstanding we cannot somehow help feeling rather gladly they did it

In his self sacrificing struggles for his country's freedom, the Cuban patriot makes valorous use of every method and every contrivance that can aid in the good cause. Murders theft burglary arson, assassination, rape poison, treachery mendacity, fratricide matricide homicide, parricide and all cides but suicide are instruments in his hands for the salvation of his native land—and the same are instruments in the hands of the 'oppressor" for the damnation of the same. Both parties patriots and Government servants alike stand ready at any moment apparently, to sell out body soul and boots, politics religion and principles to anybody that will buy—and they seem equally willing to give the same away for nothing whenever their lives stand in peril

Everybody knows that the Cuban 'oppressor is a very devil incarnate and if thoroughly impartial newspaper accounts of the doings in Cuba were furnished us everybody would see that the Cuban 'patriot is another devil incarnate just like him They are of the same breed the same color they speak the same language and dishonor the same religion, and verily their instincts are precisely and unvaryingly the same I do not love the Cuban patriot or the Cuban oppressor either and I never want to see our Government 'recognize' anything of theirs but their respective corpses If the Buffalo Express thinks differently let it say it in its editorials but not over the signatures of yours with emotion

MARK TWAIN

There is nothing more pleasing to Son and Parent than a neat fitting and good suit of clothing The place such are to be found is at Kohn & Fishel's No 91 Front street Their suits are all custom made Their stock of clothing is the largest in the city and will be sold lower than ever the next two months to make room for their extensive Spring stock soon to arrive.

Nowhere can a few hundred dollars be so well invested as in the Puget Sound Homestead Association. It will insure each shareholder an interest in the great city to be built at the terminus of the Northern Pacific Railroad. Over One Hundred Shares are already taken. Those desiring to become Stockholders will do well to call soon and secure their names

Exuberant Health

Is a blessing vouchsafed to but few Even those who have been favored by nature with strong constitutions and vigorous frames are apt to neglect the precautions necessary to preserve those precious endowments In deed as a rule, the more healthy and robust a man is the more liberties he is inclined to take with his own physique It is some consolation to the naturally weak to know that they can be so invigorated and built up, by a proper use of the means which science has placed at their disposal as to have a much better chance of long life and exemption from disease and pain than the most athletic of their fellows who are foolish enough to suppose themselves invulnerable and act accordingly

It is not too much to say that more than half the people of the civilized world need an occasional tonic to enable them to support the strain upon their bodies and minds which the fast life of this restless age occasions In fact a pure, wholesome, unexciting tonic is the grand desideratum of the busy millions and they have the article in HOSTETTER S STOMACH BITTERS It is a STANDARD MEDICINE [illegible] It imparts permanent strength to weak systems and invigorates delicate constitutions Its reputation and its sales have steadily increased Competitive preparations have been introduced ad libitum and, as far as the public is concerned, ad nauseum, in the hope of rivaling it but they have all either perished in the attempt or been left far in the rear It has been the great Medical Success of the present century and it is quite certain that no proprietary medicine in this country is as widely known or as generally used

Ten lightning presses running incessantly (Sundays excepted) the whole year through barely supply the demand for the Illustrated Almanac in which the nature and uses of the preparation are set forth the circulation now being over five millions a year

Those Evening Bells.

Those evening bells, those evening bells!
How many a tale their music tells,
Of youth, and home, and that sweet time
When last I heard their soothing chime!

Those joyous hours are passed away,
And many a heart that then was gay,
Within the tomb now darkly dwells,
And hears no more those evening bells.

And so 'twill be when I am gone—
That tuneful peal will still ring on,
While other bards shall walk these dells,
And sing your praise, sweet evening bells.

CHARACTER OF THE INHABITANTS.

[From Cor. of the Toronto Globe.]

The French half-breeds are mostly given to hunting, fishing and trading for a livelihood. They are a quick and excitable class of people. As a rule they are law abiding and honest in their dealings. Where any of them have had educational advantages they profit by them, being quick to learn and intelligent at grasping ideas. Where they pay attention to agriculture, they generally turn out good, thrifty farmers. But farming, as a general thing, is distasteful to them. Their wants are not numerous and easily supplied; and trained, as most of them have been from infancy, to hunting, trapping, trading, tripping, fishing, &c., their nomadic habits have become part and parcel of their nature. They are not, moreover, a lazy people, nor are they [illegible]; on the contrary, they are active, fair as a rule in their dealings and I feel sure that should they turn their attention to farming or other more settled pursuits than that to which they are now accustomed, they will not be behind their neighbors. There are many intelligent, clever men amongst them; the women make good faithful wives, and I must say that I have seen some of the handsomest faces I ever met with on my travels amongst the French half-breed girls of Red River. The French are noted here for their love of gayety and fun. Their homes are models of cleanliness, and altogether, they are a people that the longer you know them the better you like them. They are brave as a rule, their religion is the Roman Catholic, and their cathedral, and convents, &c., at St. Boniface, would be creditable to any country.

Unfortunately for Canadians coming to this country, they are impressed with the idea that half-breeds are a sort of half-and-half specimens of humanity, hardly entitled to the privilege of being called rational beings. This idea of the people of this country is not only [illegible] but uncalled for, as those who come here to judge for themselves soon [illegible]. The word half-breed signifies where there is a tinge more or less of Indian blood. Whoever started the term breed ought to have been choked before he had time to apply it to human beings. There are very few of us now-a-days who have not a mixture of blood in our composition—our mother, perhaps being an English woman, and our father a Scotchman or Irishman—therefore the term is as much applicable to us as to those who have Indian blood in their veins—and for this reason I would advise strangers to attach no [illegible] idea to it, for I have seen as good half-breeds as I have seen white men. Some of the finest [illegible] in the settlement have Indian blood in their veins, and more lady-like, courteous and refined gentlewomen I never met in my life.

THE ENGLISH.

The English half-breeds are more inclined to farming and trading, more staid in their characters, and more settled in their habits than the French. The generality of their farms and houses show, therefore, to better advantage than those of the latter. The English half-breeds are as a rule, industrious and intelligent, but not as quick as the French. They are, moreover, frugal, hospitable and kind, and will not be likely to fall in the rear when new-comers flock into the settlement. Their religion is mostly the Episcopal. The English cathedral is a fine stone structure. The settlement, in fact, can boast of a number of churches, all of which are good substantial buildings. The Roman Catholic, Anglican, Presbyterian, and Methodist are all represented here.

THE SCOTCH.

The Scotch settlers are a close-fisted, canny, thrifty set of people, all well to do. Their farms are models of careful management. They are not enterprising, but steady going and very conservative in their ideas. They are as a rule, fine-looking, real Scotch looking men and women; better educated, as a class, than any other settlement.

THE CANADIANS.

The Canadians we have here are, generally speaking, a good class of men—especially those who have lately come into the settlement, most of them having brought means, have bought farms and settled down. The young men have shown themselves industrious and sober. A few of them have acted unwisely in taking it for granted that there is a feeling antagonistic to Canadians generally in the minds of settlers, when in fact no such feeling exists. Those Canadians who have helped to create the present troubles by their own wrong acts are well known and appreciated.

THE AMERICANS.

The Americans, unlike some of our Canadians, have minded their own business by keeping aloof from the present troubles altogether, and, in fact, have shown themselves, in that respect, good, sensible men.

I have dwelt thus long on a description of our settlement, and the people that live in it, for the purpose of disabusing the public mind in Canada that we here, are not of sufficient importance, either numerically, intellectually, or socially speaking, to warrant granting us the proper rights of a free people—an elective voice in the management of our own affairs, and also that we are not a people inferior in any single respect to the general community.—[illegible], Canada.

Story of Lew Cass.—Captain A——, of Missouri, is known all the way on the Mississippi, from New Orleans to Dubuque, as a big-hearted, jovial fellow, who does not stand on the ceremony of an introduction before commencing an acquaintance. The Captain is fond of a drink, and moreover he does not like to drink alone. It so happened that business called him to Washington, and he had as a companion de voyage, a stout, thick set body, well up in years, who wore a wig, and who presented a striking resemblance to the late Lewis Cass. To beguile the tedium of the voyage, they chatted together and they drank together.

Captain A——, one evening after their arrival, thought he spied his companion in the densely crowded office of Brown's Hotel, and stepping up to him, he briskly slapped him on the back and remarked:

"Come, old fellow, let us take a drink."

"You mistake your man," replied the other with great gravity. "My name, sir, is Cass, Senator Cass, from Michigan."

The Captain, it is hardly necessary to say, was greatly disconcerted, and slunk away.

In the course of the evening, however, he was certain that he spied his man, and rushing up to him broke out with great glee:

"Well, I've found you at last! He! he! he! Capital joke to tell you. He! he! he! Don't you think, I met old Cass took him for you! He! he! he! Clapped the old fellow on the back, he! he! he! and, says I, come let's take a drink; he! he! and when he told me I mistook my man, thunder and lightning! didn't I slope! he! he! he!"

The Captain observed, however, that his companion did not appreciate the joke, but for a time presented a rigid countenance, and then broke in upon him:

"I, sir, am Lewis Cass, as I told you before, and I can not allow you to indulge further in these familiarities."

The Captain made no further attempts to hunt up his former companion. He is yet hale and jovial, but he is not fond of boasting of how he made the acquaintance of the late distinguished Senator from Michigan.

Samuel B. Reed, who was Superintendent of construction of the Union Pacific railroad, says his experience has satisfied him that the continental railroad can be operated as successful in winter as the railroads of the northern and eastern States.

An institution to educate colored preachers has been opened in Macon, Ga., with twenty-two in attendance.

"WHERE DO YOU GET YOUR PIPES?"—A DRAIN UPON A SENATOR'S TIME.—It would be difficult to describe the wide range and prodigious absurdity of the requests that a certain class of constituents are constantly forwarding to their representatives in Congress, but the following will partially illustrate the subject and serve as an example: While the Senate was in Executive session the other day, a tall, brawny and honest looking fellow, apparently fresh from the backwoods, was observed to inquire of the doorkeeper in a very hurried and anxious manner if he could see Senator Corbett. His name having been written on a card and sent in through the triple doors that guard the secrecy of the proceedings, which, nevertheless, are always duly reported by some obliging "little bird," the Senator presently emerges, and the bystanders hear the ensuing dialogue; for our friend from Oregon—Jones, we will call him—speaks in a voice of thunder.

Senator Corbett—"How do you do, Mr. Jones? I am very glad to see you."

Jones—"How are you, Senator? I am glad to see you."

Senator (in a hurry to return, but in his most courteous tone)—"Is there anything I can do for you to day, Mr. Jones?"

Jones—"Yes, you bet. Thompson has wrote to me to ask you, where's the best place to get pipes. What's the best kind, and where do you git your pipes?"

Senator (who doesn't use the weed, but tries to recollect what he has heard about the comparative merits of meerschaum, Powhatan and corncob pipes)—"Well, really, Mr. Jones, I don't know much about pipes. I don't smoke them, and would advise you to go to—"

"Thunder!" cries Jones, "them's not the kind I'm talking about. I mean drain pipes!"

The Senator, evidently much relieved, told the anxious inquirer that he could furnish the name of a house in New York in that line of business; and taking him into a neighboring office to consult a business directory, they were lost to further sight and hearing.

After all, however, Jones and Thompson were not utterly unreasonable in assuming that a Senator could answer their interrogatories on this subject; and, since obtaining the desired information, they are doubtless more firmly than ever convinced that "pipe laying" is one of the arts which politicians and United States Senators most thoroughly understand.—*Washington Cor. No changes are noted in our markets to-day. The Ajax took a very full freight, large quantities being received since morning, and some offered at an hour so late that it could not be taken.

More firmness is manifested in the produce line owing, perhaps, to the severity of the weather. This will very likely affect the fruit and vegetable markets to some extent, as we hear of much which has been injured by the frost.

HIRAM SMITH'S

Ophthalmic Panacea!

IS WITHOUT DOUBT THE MOST WONDERFUL EYE HEALER that has yet been discovered.

It CURES the most stubborn and hopeless cases of CHRONIC INFLAMMATIONS, GRANULATED LIDS, FILMS, &c., as has been sufficiently demonstrated during the few months in which it has been brought into public notice. The proprietor is so fully convinced of its INFALLIBILITY that he WARRANTS A CURE OR REFUNDS THE MONEY. It can do the eyes no harm, and a trial of it is therefore without injury or expense to the patient if a cure is not effected.

It has cured cases of FIVE, SIX, NINE, FIFTEEN, and even EIGHTEEN YEARS' standing in Harrisburg, Linn county, Oregon, and its vicinity, to which the following persons will bear witness:

E. B. MOORE,	NATHANIEL BELL,
A. L. WALLACE,	G. R. WARD,
Mrs. MONTGOMERY,	JOHN M. HOLLOWAY,
W. D. PORTER,	ROB'T RAMSEY,

And others in that vicinity.

Persons afflicted with the distressing scourge of diseased eyes are advised to give this remedy a fair trial on the NO CURE, NO PAY and NO INJURY plan.
